Dealing with Evils: Essays on Writing from Africa (Studies in English Literatures) By Annie Gagiano

Annie Gagiano addresses more than twenty texts from various African regions and periods, ranging from transcriptions of ancient folktales to classic African English texts and recent writings on social and gender issues. Gagiano focuses on these texts' engagement with the forces that damage and threaten life in Africa and these authors' political courage, social concern, and subtle delineation of their characters' experiences. A new preface and several new essays bring the collection up to date with the latest developments in the field.

Editorial Review

Review

This collection of essays by one of South Africa's most admired postcolonial critics collects a range of discrepant engagements with literary texts. The essays?without exception?are persuasive, each combining a close reading of the intersection of text and context.

(Tydskrif vir Letterkunde)

Incisiveness, innovation, multi-layered contextualization and meticulous referencing are what one has learned to expect from Annie Gagiano's literary analyses, and this volume delivers no less.

(Journal of Postcolonial Writing)

Gagiano's skills as a close reader are admirable. [...] Gagiano's vein of inquiry is strikingly original, intelligent and rewarding.
