Editorial Review

Review

"This is a new and engaging textbook on Child Development that has a great deal of student teacher candidate interaction. The student teacher candidate can see real life classrooms in action and be able to apply the knowledge easily."

"It's very well written. It's written so that it is not overwhelming to the students, flows very easily, and is straight to the point and well formatted."

About the Author

Lynn R. Marotz, R.N., professor emerita, was a member of the Department of Applied Behavioral Science faculty, University of Kansas, for over thirty-five years and also served as the Associate Director of the Child Development Center. She taught large undergraduate and graduate courses in parenting, children's health, safety and nutrition, history and philosophy of early childhood education, and leadership and administration.
