If Looks Could Kill By Heather Graham

Madison Adair didn't witness her famous mother's brutal murder. But she saw it. Saw the gloved hand. . .felt the knife strike. . .knew her mother's terror. That was a lifetime ago. But the nightmares have returned; only, this time they're of a faceless serial killer stalking women in south Florida. A killer she can't see but who knows she is watching.

Surrounded by her family, Madison knows she should feel safe, but she doesn't. And how much can FBI agent Kyle Montgomery protect her, when he can't let go of the past they've shared?

Madison is Kyle's only link to the killer, but can they find the truth before the killer strikes again? Because sometimes, it's what--or who--you can't see that holds the greatest danger. . . .

Editorial Review

Amazon.com Review

As a teenager, Madison Adair has her first psychic flash when her mother, the beautiful Hollywood starlet Lainey Adair, is brutally murdered. Although not present at the murder, Madison's psychic flash makes her feel as though she was her mother: she feels the pain and the fear, but she can't make out the face of the killer. Twelve years after her mother's murder, Madison has established her own successful career as a singer and model. But the psychic flashes begin again. A serial killer in Miami is stalking and murdering beautiful redheads. Madison's stepbrother, FBI agent Kyle Montgomery, is called in to track down the killer. Madison finds herself attracted to Kyle but is afraid to act on her feelings. As Kyle and Madison work together to solve the crime, they discover that the murders are similar to Madison's mother's. Because Madison is the living image of her mother, is she the ultimate target for the killer?
