From the Author

Dear Reader,

I never realized when I wrote a story set on Mount Hood that I would fall in love with the fictional town of Hood Hamlet and its residents, particularly a group of brave mountain rescue heroes with Oregon Mountain Search and Rescue (OMSAR). But I did, and I haven't looked back since. With this story, I wanted to change things up a little.

I added another glacier-covered peak, Mount Baker, the second most active volcano in the Cascades, near Bellingham, Washington. The engineer in me really had fun researching volcanoes in the Pacific Northwest!

Instead of a November to January timeframe, I used May to June. Not exactly when you'd expect to find Christmas Magic at work, but spring is the perfect time for love to bloom. Or in the case of mountain rescue volunteer Dr. Cullen Gray and volcanologist Sarah Purcell, rebloom.

Their romance had been calling to me ever since Cullen made an oh-so-brief appearance in Firefighter Under the Mistletoe. I kept wondering why he was so serious and didn't smile much. I finally figured it out and knew I had to tell his story next.

I hope you enjoy reading about Cullen and Sarah as well as Hood Hamlet. Christmas Magic in June? You never know!

Enjoy!

Melissa
