Incorporating the wealth of research and new developments in the field since the publication of the award-winning first edition, this book critically examines malingering and other forms of deception. The second edition has been thoroughly revised to give greater emphasis to clinical methods and applications. Existing chapters expand on topics such as recovered childhood memories and integrity testing, and completely new chapters cover detection of denied substance abuse and self-report measures of malingering. In addition, the volume has been completely updated to incorporate new test methods such as the PAI and MMPI-A, as well as revisions to existing tests, including the MMPI-2 and the MCMI-III.

Editorial Review

Review

"Much has happened in this field in the past ten years, and every chapter of Richard Rogers' second edition reflects those advances. This review of research on malingering and deception, and on methods for their assessment, retains all of the qualities that made the first edition an indispensable resource for every mental health professional who performs clinical evaluations. Like the first edition, this book will be the authoritative benchmark on this topic for another decade." --Thomas Grisso, PhD, Professor of Psychiatry (Clinical Psychology) University of Massachusetts Medical Center

"This long-awaited update and complete revision of Dr. Rogers' 1988 Guttmacher-award-winning classic provides clinical and forensic professionals with the latest knowledge and research findings on malingering and deception. It brings the reader up to date on the burgeoning literature of dissimulation, testing, experimental methodology, and contemporary topics such as false memories, polygraphy, and hypnosis. Dr. Rogers and his very impressive list of contributors--from psychology, neuropsychology, psychiatry, and law--do not stray from their goal of practical integration of clinical practice and applied research in the field. They have given us a worthy successor to his earlier work." --Bill Reid, MD, MPH, Clinical and Forensic Psychiatrist; Past President, American Academy of Psychiatry and the Law; Clinical Professor of Psychiatry, University of Texas, Health Sciences Center; Former Medical Director, Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation
