Bump and Run By Marteeka Karland

Jessie Wymann's got it bad for the sexy little trainer intern on staff with his team. The only problem is she's a no nonsense kind of gal. In fact, every member of the team – including the coaches – are about half way afraid of her.

Willa Nevels has never met a man she couldn't handle. That is, until she met Jessie. The big strong safety defied insight and, therefore, kept her on her toes. He never seemed to respond to any given situation the way she thought he would. Now, he's set his sights on her. The only question Willa has is whether Jessie Wymann is coming at her for a little bump and run or if he's there to take her down permanently.

Excerpt:

"I'd about given up on you." The familiar voice of Jessie Wymann slid over her like warm honey.

"You nearly gave me a heart attack, Jessie! What are you doing here?"

"Waiting on you." He stood, his full height for the first time a little imposing. God, he smelled good! Even from a distance the intoxicating scent of clean man overwhelmed her good sense. All she wanted to do was cross the scant distance and wrap her body around his until she melted into him.

She swallowed. "On me?"

"Who else would I be waiting on?"

"I suppose any woman within a hundred-mile radius? It's not like you're starved for company."

His deep chuckle made her stomach do a little flip and, to her utter astonishment, her sex clenched in want. "Well, they're not here. But you are." He reached out a hand to her. "Come with me, Willa."

There were a million reasons why this was a very bad idea, not the least of which was her internship with the team. If it was found out she was fraternizing with the players, she'd be kicked out of the program for sure. Unfortunately, she found herself stepping toward him, taking his hand, and going with him to his car.

He opened the door and held her hand until she was inside. As she fastened her seatbelt, he shut the door before walking to his side and getting in. Starting the engine of the sleek sports car he said, "Are you afraid?"

Was she? “Should I be?”

Waiting until she turned to him, Jessie said, “Absolutely. I’m a dangerous man on and off the field.”
