"At a time when effective leadership in higher education is needed more than ever to chart a new course through an expanding range of challenges, so too is the need for a clear road map to guide the complex work of academic leaders. Buller has provided the most complete and definitive guidebook to explore the practice of leading academic units—this book is a resource to keep close at hand."

—KENNETH R. BARTLETT, associate dean for faculty development and professor, College of Education and Human Development, University of Minnesota

"Buller draws from his extensive experience as a dean and a vice president of academic affairs to outline the types of constituents and the types of situations—good, bad, and neutral—that deans and provosts really do encounter on an annual basis.
